Democracy is the government of the people of a state. It is formed by the people for their own welfare. The representatives of public are expected to work for the needs, necessities and upliftment of their related areas. But most of the public representatives fail to perform their duties. They forget their promises made earlier to the public and start working for their own family and relatives. Most of their policies are made for the interest of the public but they are not completed. Moreover they are not honest in money matters and hence the works for public welfare suffer much. 8
